Driven by a thirst for adventure, I chose Asia, particularly Indonesia, to immerse myself in its vibrant culture. Communication barriers proved surmountable as I connected with English-speaking students and staff at ITS. However, I encountered challenges unique to Indonesian culture, such as the lack of pedestrian-friendly streets and the dominance of fried food. Unforgettable moments were etched during a cultural camp.

Valuable lessons emerged: conquer fears of creatures, bargain wisely, protect against the sun and mosquitoes, wear a helmet on motorcycles, use ride-hailing apps for taxis, and register your IMEI to avoid troubles. In my quest to unravel Indonesia's allure, I ventured beyond my limits, gaining profound insights amidst its captivating charm.
