Cite your sources

What is citation ?

- ❑ Citation are all sentences and or paragraphs that are not from your idea / writing.
- ❑ Citation is the practice of identifying the sources you have quoted, paraphrased or otherwise use in your writing and its pretty standard practice in academic writing.

Why we do cite?

-  Plagiarism
- allows you to acknowledge the ideas of others in your own writing
- find more sources to read and use in your own writing

 NASA's New Horizons mission, part of the New Frontiers Program, is expected to reach its primary target - the dwarf planet Pluto - on July 14 2015. Mendeley was invited to visit NASA during the close approach of Pluto and will be at NASA HQ on the day of the encounter. This report was written to mark the occasion and to share our excitement at being present for the event.

Abstract:

This document is a For Discussion draft that came from the Research Assessment Experience session of the EPrints User Group at Open Repositories 2008. Comment is invited from managers of all repository platforms to share experience of the demands of the processes involved in supporting research assessment at an institutional level. The aim of institutional repositories has focused on serving the interests of faculty researchers and teachers by collecting their intellectual outputs for long-term access, preservation and management. However, experience shows that in order to attain the engagement of the faculty, it is necessary to obtain the support of the institutional management. But in order to gain ...

The screenshot shows the Mendeley Desktop application interface. At the top, there is a menu bar (File, Edit, View, Go, Tools, Help) and a toolbar with various icons for selection, pan, note, highlight, color, zoom, fullscreen, share, and sync. A search bar is located on the right side of the toolbar. Below the toolbar, a yellow notification bar displays the message: "There was a problem connecting to mendeley.com to sync your library: Host not found".

The main workspace is divided into two panes. The left pane shows a document titled "Introduction" with the following text:

Institutional Repositories, Tout de Suite is designed to give the reader a very quick introduction to key aspects of institutional repositories and to foster further exploration of this topic through liberal use of relevant references to online documents and links to pertinent websites.

What Is an Institutional Repository

There are a number of definitions for "institutional repository" (IR). Here are a few key ones:

Clifford Lynch, "Institutional Repositories: Essential Infrastructure for Scholarship in the Digital Age"

In my view, a university-based institutional repository is a set of services
